A MODEL SUMMER WRAP. A woman may have wraps in any length and in almost any material. They may be loose and full or semi-tight-fitting, they may be heavy or diaphanous; they may be black or white or may run the gamut of the popular colors, but she must have a wrap of some sort.

Above design is exceedingly unique and sure to please the woman who does not care for the claborate styles. It has a shawl effect, scalloped all around with very pointed fronts. The flat rolling collar and wide sleeves are also scalloped. Black taffets, was used in its construction and the scallops on collar are beautifully embroidered in black silk.

PRETTY MORNING HAT.

Particularly chic and appropriate for wear with shirt-waist suits is a black chip hat turned abruptly at back and bentin scallops in front. A mass of white li-lacs and red roses trim on top and at back

CHARMING GOWN OF VIOLET LINEN.

A large number of the summer gowns are made from robe patterns, and especially is this true of the heavy linen frocks; our illustration pictures one of this sort in violet linen embroidered in self tone.

The skirt is tucked over the hips and has three rows of embroidered eyelets at bottom. A beautifully embroidered collar makes an effective trimming for the blouse, which is tucked on each side to bust line. The elbow sleeves are finished with turned cuffs, which are also scalloped and embroidered to match collar.

With this gown is worn a hat of violet Neapolitan decorated with a feather pempon of violet shades.

THE DRESSY HAT.

All dressy hats are small and if worn by a young and pretty face, they are exceedingly smart. An ideal model is pale Neapelitan in turban shape, with an immense plume in same shade covering the crown and falling prettily over the hair at side.

FOR COOL SUMMER DAYS.

The sack coat or box coat is a knowing little garment if well made and well worn, and is certainly less exacting in the matter of figure lines than a fitted coat. This one is made of soft white serge, with a flat collar of white taffets heavily stitched. As will be noticed, it is slashed up the sides and trimmed with small gold buttons, which also effect the closing in front. The sleeve is particularly good and is filled in at hand with a plaited white silk ruffle.

FOR THE EARLY GARDEN PARTY

The sheer silken stuffs are lovelier than ever and quite as popular. The above gown is made from one of the new silks, which is exceedingly soft with a luster, and yet seems hardly like taffeta or messaline. Its ground is shot in almond green and white with the most delicate of little white vines running over its surface.

A small square yoke of tucked white mousseline is bordered with a band of narrow lace insertion and three ruffles of lace. The fulness of the draped bodice is caught on either side by a strap of silk on which are fastened three small buttons. Similar treatment is given the short puffed sleeve, which is edged with a double ruffle of lace. The hat is white chip trimmed with white camelias and green foliage.
